
Title: Green Book I

It would on surface that those who strive for balance would favor the domination of the forces of order.

As chaos leads us into final dissolution and entropy.
But in fact if order dominates our world we would be trapped in stasis until the fracturing of our very substance, As stasis is not the nature of the material nor spiritual world.
Our world would be frozen in time, as a fly in amber. There would be no growth, decay or rebirth. Our souls would be left to founder on the rocks of existence.
This too represents a final death of all we hold dear.

So despite our personal feelings again, towards the virtues which we do strive to live by,
in fact we cannot support the final triumph of these forces of order and light.

We understand that the shadow is where we live, the light to bring us life, fruition to our desires, but it is the darkness that causes the decay to clear the way for the next cycle of rebirth and making room for new life.
